A method for responsible application

Operational forensics examines work as it functions in practice. OEI combines interviews, workflow observation, records, operational samples, and structured analysis to distinguish observation from interpretation, test explanations, and support action grounded in evidence.

OEI uses two distinct roles. Researchers prepare traceable evidence. Practitioners interpret that evidence, diagnose, and guide action. Company-Sponsored trains two people for $10,000. Independent Consultant trains one person for both roles for $12,000. OEI Native qualifies a Practitioner for Institute delivery for $15,000. The 60% training and assessment payment is upfront and non-refundable. Passing earns certification and authorization. The 40% balance is due only after passing. First-year renewal is waived. Annual renewal is $500 per internally employed Company-Sponsored Practitioner, $600 for Independent Consultants, and $750 for OEI Native Practitioners. Researchers have no renewal fee.
